

Consultant Terms of Reference (TOR) Mid-term review of ICRHK Strategic Plan

About the organization

Established in May 2000, ICRHK is a Kenyan non-governmental organization (NGO) committed to advancing sexual and reproductive health (SRH) through evidence-based research and interventions. Over the past two decades, ICRHK has collaborated with diverse partners to implement high-quality SRH initiatives in Kenya and globally. ICRHK aspires to be a Centre of Excellence in sexual and reproductive health research and interventions. The organization mission is to contribute to improve the health status of Kenyan by designing and implementing innovative evidence-based, and cost-effective interventions and conduct research capable of influencing public policy and practice in SRH in Kenya. ICRHK work focuses on five main thematic areas; 1) HIV/Sexually transmitted infections (STIs), 2) Maternal, Neonatal, and Child Health, 3) Family Planning, 4) Adolescent Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights, and 5) Sexual and Gender-Based Violence.

In the last two decades, ICRHK has forged strong partnerships with government agencies (Ministry of Health, National Council for Population and Development (NCPD), Kenya National Bureau of Statistics, Ministry of Education, and academic institutions. Additionally, active participation in the technical working groups at the National and sub-national levels coupled with community engagement, has enabled the organization to contribute significantly to Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights through research and behavior change programming. The organization is affiliated with various professional bodies locally and globally, including The Health NGOs Network (HENNET), Coalition for Health Research and Development (CHReaD), Reproductive Health Network Kenya (RHNK), Global Health Network, IBP network, and serves on the steering committee of the UNFPA Global Supplies Partnership.

Background:

In response to what is happening in the NGO's world in terms of donor interest shifts and the increased unpredictability of resources, ICRHK acknowledges the necessity of reassessing its operations and strategic direction. To this end, we are embarking on a mid-term review of our strategic plan 2021-2025 to assess progress, identify and address challenges, and enhance strategies for achieving our goals. To facilitate this process effectively, ICRHK seeks to engage a consultant who will collaborate with our team to navigate this endeavor.

Scope of assignment:

The primary objective of this initiative is to conduct a midterm review of the ICRHK strategic plan. This endeavor aims to evaluate progress towards achieving the established goals and objectives within the designated timeframe. It involves a comprehensive assessment of key performance indicators, milestones, and targets outlined in the strategic plan. At the conclusion of this consultancy, ICRHK foresees the adoption of a comprehensive strategic framework. This framework will reflect the accomplishments and insights gained during the implementation of the Strategic Plan. Moreover, it will be attuned to the dynamic operating environment of the organization. To achieve this the consultant will be guided by the following specific objectives include:

1. To evaluate the implementation progress of the current strategic plan.
2. To assess the effectiveness of strategies and interventions in achieving the outlined objectives.
3. To identify key achievements, best practices challenges, and lessons learned during the implementation period.
4. To solicit feedback from stakeholders and beneficiaries to enhance future planning and programming.
5. Costing the plan and ensuring alignment with activities in the period.
6. Review and/or redesign the monitoring, evaluation and reporting framework for tracking the strategic plan's progress effectively.

Methodology

The consultancy will employ a participatory approach, engaging closely with internal and external stakeholders of ICRHK. The methodology encompasses the following steps:

1. Reviewing the organization situational context utilizing strategic planning analytical tools.
2. Examining internal and external documents while benchmarking with similar organizations.
3. Conducting consultations with key stakeholders, including Senior management, ICRHK staff and partners.
4. Reviewing specific donor strategic plans to ensure alignment.
5. Facilitating a strategic planning workshop to solicit input and foster consensus among stakeholders.
6. Evaluating the existing organizational structure and capacities.
7. Updating the strategic plan and integrating feedback from stakeholders.

Expected Deliverables

1. Inception report detailing the methodology and projected timelines.
2. Feedback report from stakeholders.
3. Updated risk management plan
4. Comprehensive strategic plan incorporating inputs from the participatory process and an updated Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) plan.
5. Final consultancy report providing a concise summary of major activities and outcomes.

Consultant Requirements

The identified consultant must possess academic credentials, professional experience and specialised expertise relevant to both strategic planning and nonprofit sector: Key qualifications will include;

1. A degree in relevant field such as Business administration, Management, organizational development. Advances degrees in strategic planning, Project Management, or Leadership or related disciplines.
2. Extensive experience in strategic planning, preferably within the nonprofit sector is essential.
3. Demonstrate a deep understanding of the unique challenges, dynamics, and regulatory frameworks specific to the nonprofit sector.
4. Strong analytical capabilities are crucial for assessing the effectiveness of strategic plans.
5. Proficiency in strategic planning methodologies, frameworks, and tools is essential.
6. Demonstrate the ability to work collaboratively with NGO stakeholders, including senior management, staff, and beneficiaries.
7. Past success in conducting strategic plan reviews or similar consulting engagements, evidenced by client testimonials, case studies, or references.
8. Effective communication skills, both written and verbal

Selection Criteria

The consultant will be selected based on:

1. Proposed approach to the assignment.
2. Suitability statement, including availability.
3. Budget and work plan with clear timelines.
4. References from 1-2 similar assignments.

Supervision

The consultancy will be supervised by the SMT lead for the process, supported by the Country Director/CEO.

Confidentiality

The consultant should adhere to ethical code of conduct and standards and maintain confidentiality while conducting the review process. Integrity, professionalism, and a commitment to the NGO's mission and values are paramount. All collected documents and data will be treated confidentially and used solely for the consultancy. Information accessed will remain the property of the ICRH Kenya.

Duration and Budget

The strategic planning exercise is expected to be completed by the end of June 2024.

The consultant will submit a detailed budget for consideration, with final terms stipulated in the consultancy contract.

Conclusion

This consultancy aims to provide ICRHK with a robust strategic plan review that addresses current challenges and maximizes opportunities for advancing ICRHK Vision and Mission. By engaging stakeholders and leveraging expertise, the ICRHK can navigate uncertainties and drive impactful change over the remaining period.

nt.